

ECON 201-Quijano

10:00 a.m.-Fall 2002 Semester

(Note: Grammar and Spelling errors were not corrected. I typed what was written.)

*Fernando Quijano did a great job of teaching. He has a vast knowledge of economics. The only concern I have is when $\frac{3}{4}$ of the class gets a question wrong on a test, maybe it should get thrown out.

*This course was taught very effectively. All information was covered very well and poor student performance in this course was not from any lack of Mr. Quijano. The only bad thing I can say about this course is there was one instance Mr. Quijano was disrespectful toward his students. He said we were being spoon fed the material compared to students at UND. He said we weren't as good of students as they were. Insinuating we lack intelligence. He tried to cover his tracks but failed.

*Even though the course is difficult, Fernando presented the class material effectively. The wonderful Power Point presentations and all the information available on his website was VERY helpful. It was nice to have a variety of course presentation rather than just lecture or taking notes from the blackboard. Fernando has a great sense of humor and made class fun. He is so knowledgeable of economics. I am looking forward to taking another class from him.

*Microeconomics is a difficult course, but the knowledge of the instructor is strong. He is able to use examples most of us can relate to. It is easier though to see the material on the board than read some of the questions on the test and interpret them correctly. The internet material was also very helpful in preparing for the tests.

*I felt his tests would be very confusing and would not strictly cover the material he was teaching. I believe he knows this material very good, but does not do a good job on testing what he teaches. When over $\frac{1}{2}$ half the class gets D's and F's on tests, that shows a lot about his teaching.

*I enjoy going to Mr. Quijano's class, because he makes it interesting. Also I like how he would make statements or give +1's out in class and follows through with it. Fernando is also very knowledgeable in economics. It is refreshing to have a professor as knowledgeable as Fernando who doesn't have a doctorate. Some Dr's around campus, you wonder how they even got their undergraduate degree in teaching.

*This is an outstanding class. Fernando is a great teacher who really knows economics and really does a great job relating his knowledge to his students. I would definitely take more courses from him.

*Class is great. Web sight is very, very useful. Expectations are clearly defined. Material is thoroughly covered. Class is interesting.

- *I feel this class was taught very effectively. We need more hands on work.
- *He talked to us like we were idiots. He was often late for class.
- *This class was excellent. I learned a great deal and learning was fun. I especially liked how grades and assignments ect. were posted for immediate use on the Internet. I will definitely take another course from Fernando.
- *The course was taught in the best way that the students could learn the material. Dr. Quijano was very enthusiastic and I enjoyed having him as an instructor.
- *I think that he should give more homework assignments to help with the grades. Test grades are not enough. I really like the website, it is very helpful.
- *Slow down, make sure ideas are understood before moving on.
- *He was very knowledgeable and the website was very helpful in the class.
- *Fernando does an excellent job of teaching this course. He has an obvious knowledge of the subject. He also utilizes the website very well.
- *Fernando has a great knowledge of economics. The way he uses the internet is neat and effective for helping prepare for tests.
- *This course has been informational. I think that I will be able to apply it to some aspect of my future career.
- *The instructor knows the material like the back of his head. I like his teaching techniques this semester from Fall 2001. I seem to be understanding the material better since the material is not only power point slides. He makes sure that all material is clear and goes over the test questions in class which are going to be on the test.
- *In general professor Quijano does a good job. I do however wish that he would make better use of the audiovisual equipment that is available to him in Beck Auditorium. He typically writes his notes on the board; it would be preferable if he would use the projector/screen. This would make his notes easier to read and understand.
- *Over all I have felt that the class has been good. I feel that the class has been taught as effectively as possible for the time period in which the teacher has had. The only bad thing about the class is the amount of material that has to be fit into such a small time frame. The web page and Internet material that were provided have been very helpful especially while studying for tests.
- *Your test questions are hard to understand. They are worded strangely.

*Good instructor. Web site extremely helpful. Never used the book. Good thing saves $.

*Website and Powerpoint is very helpful. Professor is very knowledgeable and helpful. Class material is hard to digest, takes a lot of work but professor has so many tools to help.

*I believe that Mr. Quijano is very knowledgeable in his field and is an asset to the university. One concern is his tests, they are the most complicated tests and the easiest ones to make a mistake on.

*The time I needed to talk to him he was easy to get a hold of and his webpage is very usefull.

*Overall, I think Fernando Quijano did a great job teaching this course.

*I feel that I would like another class from Fernando.

*I liked the way he taught. He gave us every opportunity to do well on the tests and assignments. He pointed us to different websites for information, made graphs and the electronic blackboard. I liked the class, and for something completely new and different it was taught effectively.

*I learned nothing in this class. It is very hard to learn from him. The group test was nice however it was a token effort. He was rude to students many times.

*I really enjoyed the class even though there is a big struggle for me to completely understand every difficult graph. However as knowledge I believe this is a hard class alone which makes it even harder to teach a class of 80 in a hall.

*This class is very helpful and interesting. I think the instructor for this course makes the class fun and exciting to attend every Tuesday and Thursday. The material is very well presented.
