

Fall 2005
Econ 105, 10 AM
34 Students

Fernando is a fun teacher with an interesting point of view.

Is there to help the students.

I think that the way the class was taught is great but that there should be a study or tutour in the library for this course

Very fun and enjoys teaching and allowing us to ask questions and learn. He writes class notes on the board and is fun to learn from.

Mr. Quijano does a very good job of explaining & going over what the important parts of the material are. I would leave the course the way it is. I like the way he writes notes on the blackboard.

I initially took the course because I was interested in the subject, however, after getting to know Dr. Quijano I now would take a class because he is teaching it. As a student I can tell he is very qualified in his field.

Even though this is an introductory class, there are still several difficult concepts to grasp.

This class was very interesting and fun; however, it was the most challenging class that I've had in the 3 yrs. since I started college.

Quijano Rules! He makes a boring subject interesting. The take home exams are very helpful. If one needs help, he helps.

I enjoyed take home tests and study partner tests. The instructor knows his topic exceptionally well and can relate his knowledge to anything.

Supply and demand curves were most use full to me. I feel the teacher dose a good job in teaching.

Dr. Quijano has a great way of relating to students and adjusting to how we learn the best. He adjusts his strategy to make our learning more beneficial. He also makes the time spent here enjoyable.

I really enjoy this class. The instructor makes it very interesting and uses example we can all relate to. He encourages us to help each other out and work in groups.

Everything the instructor had for us to do and finish is an excellent technique to teach us, in his class. He is very knowledgable with what he teaches.

Instructor did a great job of getting back grades quickly. Instructor did a great job posting graphs, assignments, grades, tables... on the internet. Instructor did a great job of writing notes on the board.

Having take home tests. Having a study group.

Quijano knows his ****. He demonstrates everyday an infinite knowledge of Economics and he applies it to everyday life. I would recommend Quijano to anyone of my peers.

Mr Quijano is a wonderful professor and I look forward to class each day. He makes learning fun, and his notes that he writes on the board are a lifesaver come test time. He is also more patient, than I. There is an older fellow in this class who never fails to add his two cents. 99% of what comes out of his mouth is irrelevant. I have started counting the number of times he has piped up, and he has reached an astounding 235 comments. Through all of this Mr. Quijano patiently answers this mans questions, even though the rest of us want to throw him out of the window.

Very good charts and graphs Tests are challenging – good assessment of knowledge
Classes are good and interesting.

Improvements 1) More time for make-up work after an excused absence. 2) Better one-on-one for students that want help. 3) Understanding excused absences. Sustains 1) take home tests are doable yet very challenging. 2) Office hours are kept. 3) knowledge of area teaching.

Mr. Quijano is a very good teacher. He always makes sure he has his tests graded the same day and has a good understanding of what he is teaching. He also has online Companion site which is very useful throughout the course.

Quijano's teaching method reaches out to each student & allows he/she to excell in & out of the classroom. No improvements Needed.

Great teacher, great guy.